

Rust Maintainers Team

Keeping the Rust Project maintained
so you can focus on building reliable software

Why?

Maintenance is the groundwork that is crucial for Rust's sustainability, its pace of development, and to attract new contributors.

Historically, Rust's maintainers have faced high workloads and burnout. Right now, there's a significant decline in maintenance positions at corporations, already resulting in noticeable delays in the development of Rust.

We need to find new ways to create job security and stable work environments for maintainers, allowing you to continue relying on Rust to build robust software.

What?

RustNL's Rust Maintainers Team will provide paid positions for general maintenance.

The target is to raise a total of €1.5M, covering 2026 and 2027 (€750k/year). RustNL guarantees:

- Low overhead: over 90% of funding will flow to maintainers
- Single purpose: providing compensation to maintainers

Fully funded, RustNL will employ 6 full-time maintainers and offer 6 internships per year to mentor talented new contributors.
